

Update: 4/21/08 I've been forced to turn off the image display in the module, because other "customized" avatars are not being shrunk down. Not as pretty in my layout, and I don't feel like messing with the code, so I'll be on the lookout for other module solutions. Free (software) is as free (software) does. ☹

Update: 4/3/09 I noticed last night, that the 2.0 extension is still glitching, presenting certain images non-thumbnailed (doesn't seem to matter if they are giif, jpeg or png). The software might need an adjustment to the php? No idea right now. I suspect it has something to do with Tweets who upload large "custom" images. Hmmmm.

A large CapitolOne animated Google Ad is showing up on my blog now...instead of the usual tech ads. Why?

Here's an excellent video that my son Christian Eusebio did, for his Maine South H.S. broadcasting class, of Beck's song Lost Cause. The actor is another talented son, Noah Eusebio, who has probably powered you in WOW.
